

Roger Sedgley 1953 – 2018
Director
DipArch (Canterbury) ARB

It is with great sadness that Alexander Sedgley reports the loss of Roger Sedgley, founder partner of the practice who died at the age of 65 in Edinburgh on Sunday 28th October 2018.

Rogers funeral was held at his new home town in Anstruther, Scotland where he was laid to rest.

The funeral and wake was held in this picturesque fishing village on Saturday 17th November. An event that would have received Rogers full approval. The day was very well attended by close family friends from far and wide and those more recently made on the East Coast.

Roger will always be remembered for his positive outlook on life, innovated approach to design and architecture, his unique sense of humour, individual taste in music and love of real ale. Roger was one of the founder members of CAMRA who launched pub design awards which we all drank in his memory. He was unique in many ways and always prepared to generously contribute to the greater common good. He will be sadly missed by so many who he touched along his life's rich journey.
